Male - 21 - Med Related Course - UST
What LMS do you use? (canvas, google classroom, dpsm courses, notion)
- In UST, we use Blackboard (di ko sure if counted to omg) as our LMS(?) even before the pandemic started. It has been reliable even in the normal setting. I use canva for presentations

In terms of tracking your ongoing projects, what apps or programs do you use?
- Our class uses an application called TimeTree to add, track, and monitor our deadlines. It has a calendar-type of interface where everyone in the group can add and is mobile friendly since it has widget available

What are the strong points of these programs?
- The strongest point that I could think of of these programs is that it is really reliable, and user friendly where operating it is not as hard as the others. It also has no ads and the aesthetic interface it gives to us, users, helps us focus better with our projects and deadlines.

Is there any feature that you wish the programs you use have?
- None. For me, when it comes to applications that monitors and pins your deadlines, the interface should be pleasing and simple as possible especially for me, a med student, where there are deadlines and notification about tests everyday. Having less features in the app except it ability to take down deadlines actually helps me feel organized and relaxes me since I can focus on several tasks in a day. Adding more features to it would make it messier and could make the user panic and be more stressed.

Male - 21 - EEE - UST
What LMS do you use? (canvas, google classroom, dpsm courses, notion)
- UST Blackboard

In terms of tracking your ongoing projects, what apps or programs do you use?
- UST Blackboard and Samsung Reminder App

What are the strong points of these programs?
- The UST Blackboard platform has a built in activity stream where you can check your current/remaining projects you haven't done yet, see the activity's deadline, and sorted according to its deadline. The Samsung Reminder app has a main check list/box to remind you that you finished the activity, sub check list (list of activities under the main check list), it has a reminder date/time set by the user that pops out on your phone and lists your activities in the calendar

Is there any feature that you wish the programs you use have?
- 1. Interface should be more pleasing rather than disturbing when you have lot of activities listed

- 2. Sounds when submitting or ticking the box, so that we could be sure that its checked/submitted for a specific activity

- 3. Improved sorting of activities

Male - 21 - Industrial Design - UPD
What LMS do you use? (canvas, google classroom, dpsm courses, notion)
- I usually use google classroom because most of my classes use it as the main tool for learning. All of our class requirements, discussions, plates, and resources is being channeled through google classroom. But I also use Canva to make presentations for class hehe.

In terms of tracking your ongoing projects, what apps or programs do you use?
- In terms of tracking my ongoing projects, I used Notion before pero not that often na kasi it takes a lot of time and effort to update the content of my page. Tinamad ako lol.

What are the strong points of these programs?
- One of the strong points of Notion is that it is customizable, I enjoyed personalizing my workspace and I can also upload my learning materials on my page, like everything that I need for a subject I can put it all in one place. Berry nice. But its kinda hard to navigate since there's so much stuff you can do.

Is there any feature that you wish the programs you use have?
- Maybe a simpler UI that's easy to understand for the users. I enjoy the customizable feature of Notion, but it took me some time to get used to because of the interface, like there's so much stuff on the pages. And uhm a nice feature rin if you can connect different LMSs in one app, like google classroom can be connected to notion, like yung content can be synchronized and the schedules can be updated, kasi when I use Notion I have to manually update everything which is very time consuming yah something like that.